

Notification on SVHC Substances and REACH

Dear Business Partner,

According to the European Chemicals Regulation (REACH), every actor in the supply chain is obliged to provide information on the contained SVHC substances (in particular, substances of very high concern) of its products, if this substance is present in a concentration of more than 0.1% by mass.

The ECHA has published the list of these substances on the internet, known as the Candidate List. This list will be continuously updated as new information becomes available.

Manufacturers and importers are required to register substances they produce, as well as those they use or import, provided that the quantity placed on the market exceeds one ton per year, unless an exemption applies.

Under REACH, chemical substances are subject to registration, but finished products are not.

The products we supply unequivocally fall within the definition of the regulation as goods that are not required to be registered.

To the best of our knowledge today, none of the substances listed in the currently published list exceed 0.1% by mass in our products.

As soon as it is known that a newly added substance from the ECHA's published Candidate List is present in our products in a concentration above 0.1% by mass, we will inform you immediately.
